A&H Legal Partners

VERSION 1.0, OCTOBER 2026

An archway, a keystone, two partners.

The A&H mark is drawn from a courthouse archway. The double arch is the court and the protection it gives. At its crown sits a keystone, the single stone that holds an arch together, standing for the two partners who hold the firm.

Between the A and the H, the italic ampersand is the fulcrum of the scales: two people, balanced, carrying one standard of work.

The same arch appears across the website, the stationery and every future surface, so the firm is recognised before its name is read.

KEYSTONE
The one stone that locks an arch in place: the two partners who hold the firm.

OUTER ARCH
The court, and the institution behind every matter.

AMPERSAND
The partnership, and the point on which the scales balance.

INNER ARCH
The protected space inside which a client's affairs are handled.

GROUND LINE
Firm footing: preparation before argument.

One mark, four arrangements.

The seal

The primary mark. Use it first, wherever there is room: the card, the file cover, the envelope, signage.

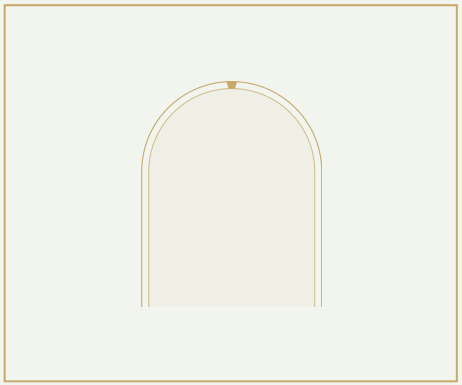

Horizontal lockup

For letterheads, documents and any wide, short space.

Wordmark

For tight or very small placements where the seal would be too fine.

The symbol

The archway on its own: patterns, watermarks, embossing, favicons.

Room to breathe.

Keep a margin equal to the height of the monogram's capital letters (X) free of other type, images and edges, on every side.

Minimum sizes keep the fine arch lines legible in print and on screen.

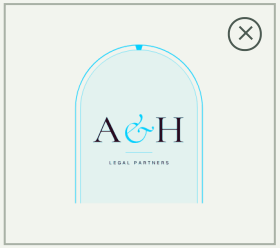

The seal	16 mm / 70 px tall
Horizontal lockup	30 mm / 130 px wide
Wordmark	22 mm / 100 px wide
The symbol	6 mm / 24 px tall

COMMON MISTAKES

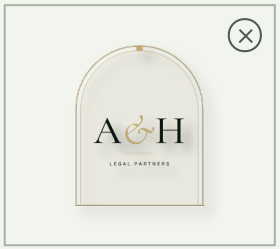

Do not stretch or squash

Do not recolour

Do not rotate

Do not add effects

A quiet palette, one gold note.

Deep library green carries the weight; pale paper gives it air. Gilt is used sparingly, never as a large flood, so that when it appears (a keystone, an ampersand, a hairline) it reads as a mark of care.

PROPORTION ACROSS A TYPICAL PAGE

CMYK values are a starting point for the printer, not a specification. Ask for a printed proof and, for foil, a physical champagne-gold swatch before approving a run.

Two voices, one tone.

Aa&

Cormorant Garamond

Display and headings. Light 300 and Regular 400 for large sizes; Medium 500 for names and the monogram; italic for emphasis and the ampersand.

Aa

Geist

Text, contact details and small capitals. Regular 400 for reading; Medium 500, tracked wide, for labels.

اظہار

Names and titles. Cormorant Garamond Medium.

ADVOCATE HIGH COURT

Near Lahore High Court, Lahore

Labels and text. Geist Medium tracked caps; Geist Regular.

All three families are free and open source (SIL Open Font License) and available from Google Fonts. Install Cormorant Garamond and Geist on every machine that produces letters, so documents match the stationery.

Small formats, one system.

The business card carries both partners and a QR code to the website: a light face for the seal, a deep green back for the details.

The long envelope has a plain face for the address and a branded face with the postage stamp box and a dark contact bar. Corner arcs borrow the double arch of the logo.

Large formats, same voice.

The letterhead, the A4 envelope and the court file cover follow the pattern of the card: seal and partners at the head, contact details at the foot, a QR code on the letterhead and the file cover, and a faint arch watermark.

The same mark, on screen.

The website uses the same archway, the same type and the same palette. Visitors who arrive from a card or a letter see exactly what they were holding.

Ready for the printer.

Business card 88.9 x 50.8 mm, 3 mm bleed	600 gsm uncoated cotton, or 350 gsm duplexed. Face: Paper with the seal and arches in gold foil. Back: Ink flood with ivory text and gold icons. Optional edge painting in Ink.	business-card_print-bleed3mm.pdf
